He had been dead but a short time as the body was still warm when he was found. An attack of heart trouble is believed to have been the cause of death.

Laseter was on the streets here Wednesday, apparently in the best of health and spirits and did not complain of feeling badly on retiring last night.

Deceased belonged to one of the oldest families in the county. He was born at Shover Springs, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Laseter, and is survived by a number of relatives, many of them prominent in the business left of the county. He is a nephew of Webb Laseter, Sr., of this city.

Burial will be Friday in Shover Springs cemetery, near where he was born, the services being conducted by Rev. W. A. Bowen, of the Baptist church here, assisted by Rev. Bright, the dead man's pastor.

Seattle Hotel Fire Takes Seven Lives

Many Injured and Some Not Expected To Recover Firemen Say

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Trapped by flames, seven persons lost their lives and twelve others were burned or otherwise injured in a fire which swept through the Portland hotel here early today.

Firemen believe that all the bodies had been recovered from the smoldering ruins. Some of the injured are in a critical condition and are not expected to recover.

The cause of the blaze is undetermined. Firemen said the seven perishing were probably suffocated as they slept. None of them could be identified at once. The building was an old brick structure.

The hotel was operated by Hugh Okada, a Japanese, whose wife was critically injured when she leaped from a third story window. The dead were all white persons.

Firemen are investigating a report that several Japanese were burned to death in the living quarters of the proprietor.

Local Man Visits War Time Buddy Business Man Dead

Barney Hamm Goes To See His Old C.O., Gen. Holbrook.

A friendship having its inception twelve years ago on the battlefields of France and interrupted by the signing of the Armistice and the return to civil life of one of the parties, was renewed last Sunday in Hot Springs.

Barney Hamm, local business man, and his brother, W. H., Jr., of Camden were guests at the Spa of General Holbrook commanding officer of the First Field Artillery brigade "Over there," just back from three years' service in the Philippines and taking a short rest before assuming his duties at Fort Bragg, N. C., to which he has been transferred.

General Holbrook was Barney's c.o. in France, bossing W. H., Jr., also. When he was transferred from his division to another he secured the transfer of the Hamm boys, too, and they were together until the close of hostilities.

Then Barney and his brother came back home to Arkansas while the General, in the regular service, was sent to the Islands. When he came back a few days ago he remembered his old comrades and wrote Barney, asking him to come up for a visit. Barney got in touch with his brother and last Sunday they, with their wives, drove up to see the General and Mrs. Holbrook—and what a visit they had!

Mr. Hamm hopes to have the General and wife visit here before they return east.

Army-Navy Games Will Be Resumed

West Point Takes Lead In Promoting Peace Between Schools

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Taking the initiative with a definite proposal for a renewal of football relations between the army and navy, Major General Williams R. Smith, Superintendent of the United States Military Academy, today telegraphed Rear Admiral S. S. Robinson, Superintendent of the United States Naval Academy, proposed an early conference at Washington aimed at reconciliation.

As a basis for ending the break which resulted originally from a difference over eligibility standards, Major General Smith proposed that any member of the student body, declared eligible by his academy authorities would be eligible to play.

This is the first peace move made by West Point since all efforts on a compromise on eligibility rules failed. The break followed the 1927 game between the two schools on the Polo Grounds in New York.

After the world Series was over, First Baseman Jimmy Foxx of the Champion Philadelphia Athletics made another home run—to Dover, Del.—to see his 11-day-old son for the first time. Jury Deadlocks On Whiskey Trial In Circuit Court

Second Mistrial Threatens In Hearing for Perjury

SCHOOL CASE IS SET

Request for Writ In Columbus Case Scheduled for November 8

A hung jury in the case of Roy Burns, charged with making mash, and a second jury threatening mistrial after being deadlocked for several hours, were the developments in Hempstead county circuit court, at Washington, last night and this morning.

The evidence in the case of Martin Guthrie, charged with perjury, was sent to the jury this morning, and at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon Judge W. H. Arnold called the jurors out, only to find that they were still disagreed. They were returned to the jury room for further discussion.

On trial this afternoon was the case of Roosevelt Jameson, negro, accused of making liquor, with District Attorney Steve Carrigan, and Assistant Pat Casey, for the state, and John Vesey for the defense. Evidence closed at 1:30, and final arguments were to be started shortly afterward.

Judge Arnold this morning overruled a demurrer to the writ of certiorari sought in the case of Rural School District No. 19 against the County Board of Education. Trial on the writ is to be heard November 8. The case is said to involve the protest of the Liberty community against consolidation of its school with a central district school to be established at Columbus.

Prosecution of the first of 15 indictments against the Public-Saenger theatre, of Hope, charging the illegal showing of motion pictures here on Sunday, was set for today, but at noon it appeared unlikely that the court would reach consideration of this case today.

Elephant, Jungle Mad. Shot To Death

Requires 60 Bullets From High Powered Rifle To Down the Monarch

KENEDY, Tex., Oct. 17.—Hans Nagel, keeper of the Houston zoo, saw that Black Diamond, killer elephant, was lashed securely to two trees in a cotton field near here late Wednesday. Nagel then picked up a large bore rifle and paced off a few yards and fired.

Black Diamond jerked a trifle. It was futile, despite his tremendous strength, but the trees shook. Nagel fired again. The bullet penetrated the iron skull of the second largest elephant ever displayed by the Al G. Barnes circus. The heavy beast was shaken by a nervous reflex. He was a picture of tremendous dumb pain.

Nagel must dispose of him, he had killed a woman. He had killed five other persons in his time. The elephant had jungle madness. But Nagel was shaken by the task he had to perform. He fired again and again and called for more ammunition.

The sixtieth report of the rifle rang out through the Texas field. Black Diamond's massive legs buckled and his several tons of flesh crashed to the ground. There was a strangled bellow, the chains tore the bark of the trees under the weight of the elephant.

"I guess we've turned his hoofs to the sun for good," Nagel said. All of the few persons permitted to witness the execution felt a kind of regret. Black Diamond's fine proportions had appealed to many a kid's imagination on circus days, since he was brought, as a baby, from India. The head will be preserved at the Houston zoo. The hide and tusks will be saved.

The death march started from a box car here at noon. The condemned beast was chained to two of his fellow creatures. Sidewalks were crowded as the three animals went past, swagging in the contemptuous and patient attitudes which give their chains tricks a touch of awkward barbarousness that dlights audiences.

Black Diamond's troubles started last Saturday at Corsicana when he was being unloaded. It was his last rampage.

A basket of oranges, containing 22 ounces of violent poison, lay untouched beside his body after the shooting. He had refused to eat them. And yet his trainer said oranges were his favorite delicacy.

Crowds Jam Way In Shop District Wednesday Night

Saenger Theater Packed As Models Parade Fall Fashions

IS EXCELLENT SHOW

Mrs. Talbot Feild Aides Directs, Aided By Merchants

Hope's co-operative Style Show and Window Carnival set a great record last night for the throng that was packed onto the sidewalks of the downtown district for a mid-week event.

Traffic was congested at all the central city intersections from 7 o'clock until 8, and an endless procession filed by the show windows of the city's merchants. These had been veiled until 6:30 the hour for the revealing of the city's latest fall merchandise.

The Hope Boy's Band played on downtown street corners from 6:30 until 8, and there was a festival air over the entire city.

Immensely Crowded The big Saenger theatre was the scene of a near riot as the town scrambled for seats before the opening of the Style revue shortly after 8 o'clock. Some score of girls and boys and children were in the theatre dressing rooms being groomed by the merchants to parade the fashions of fall.

As the news and comedy reels were run off the vast crowd stirred with eager interest, awaiting the showing of local talent and home merchandise. It was a happy combination of a fall fashion show and "Amateur Night."

The merchants and Manager Jack Eaves, of the Saenger, had seen to every detail to make a perfect setting for the show. As the motion picture faded from the screen, the curtain dropped and a "spot" flickered along the lighted runway and rested on the expectant stage. Then the curtain rose and little Marilyn McRae danced slowly out to the footlights. Her opening number was followed by the appearance of the first of the models.

Mrs. Feild Director It was a perfectly staged and smoothly arranged revue, speaking volumes for the direction of Mrs. Talbot Feild. Under Mrs. Feild's coaching the entire show had been assembled and made ready for the final performance with but one dress rehearsal.

As the girls and boys, making their appearance one by one, swept around the stage, and out on the runway, under a flood of light, there was prolonged cheering from the audience. The show was paced with a spirited accompaniment by Mrs. Alma Mitchell, the Saenger organist.

The Models The models and house for whom they appeared were:

The Innocent Cheat

By Ruth Dewey Groves

AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL—POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Helen Page feels indebted to and in love with her guardian, Leonard Brent. The latter changes his plans for her future after meeting a dying beggar, Nellin, and tells the girl she is heiress of a millionaire named Cunningham. Brent takes her to the lonely old man and offers proofs which Cunningham accepts, as he had been searching for his dead daughter's child for years.

Among Helen's new friends are Eva Ennis and her brother Robert, who falls in love with her. Brent becomes jealous of Bob and plots to win Helen quickly, especially after finding another lock like the one he had taken from Nellin to prove Helen the heiress. Hearing that a sudden shock would kill Cunningham, Brent slyly administers the shock, and the servants find the old man dead in bed. Then, by clever acting and appeal to her jealousy, Brent wins Helen's promise to marry him.

Later, she and Bob discover their true love for each other and he is angry when she tells him she cannot break her engagement though she loves him. Bob fights with Shallimar Morris, not knowing that Helen has tried to break with Brent after finding him indulging in a love affair with another woman. But he had refused to release her and had made dire threats if she tried to throw him over.

Eva realizes that Helen is unhappy, but resents her treatment of Bob which has driven him to Shallimar. But Eva is worried, too, for Brent is now avoiding her after having made ardent love to her secretly. She scolds Bob and he laughs at her, saying that Helen is engaged to Brent. Eva collapses and admits that Brent has been making love to her secretly.

CHAPTER XXXIX

Mrs. Wethering opened the door to Bob and her voice was decidedly cold when she said she would see if Miss Nellin would receive him. Why Helen ever wanted to be friends with people who had no conception of the proper time for calling was more than she could understand.

Bob was aware of her disapproval but it did not worry him.

"Would Helen be up? That was all he cared about—that and what he had to say to her."

Mrs. Wethering was surprised to find Helen dressed and on the verge of descending for breakfast. When she heard that Mr. Ennis was asking to see her, she whirled from the dressing table, where she was putting a last golden pin into her hair, and stared blankly at the woman who had announced him.

"What does he want?" she said finally, and stupidly, she realized the next second.

"Why, I . . . " Mrs. Wethering was about to say, bluntly, that she was sure she did not know but Helen stopped her.

"Never mind," the girl said hastily. "Tell him I will see him immediately."

Although she was ready to go down she stayed a while in her room to regain her composure. Whatever could it mean, this early visit from Bob?

Her reflection, as she patted a bit of rouge onto her pale cheeks, gave her no answer.

Could it concern Eva? She'd been troubled ever since she awoke and found Eva gone. Had she, she wondered, done anything to offend her?

It was with more than a little trepidation that she went down at last to find Bob waiting for her in the lower hall.

"Have you breakfasted?" she asked him so closely on top of the most cheerful "goodmorning" she could achieve that he answered in the negative before he'd time to think of anything else to say.

"Then do come in with me and have a bite," she urged, moving at the same time in the direction of the morning room where her breakfast was served.

Bob felt averse to calling after her that he could not stay. He followed, but when Helen motioned him to the seat that was meant for Shallimar—should she choose to come down, as she rarely did—he stood beside it and shook his head. Helen seated herself, certain now that he was about to disclose something of an unpleasant nature. The frown that creased his brow was forbidding, and gloom sat his countenance like a black rider on a dark steed.

"Please sit down," she begged. "I'll not ring for anything until you tell me what you have come to say. I can see that it is important."

"It is most important," Bob answered quietly, "to my sister."

"Oh! Eva!" Helen cried. "Has 'That' Bob replied, 'is partly for you to say.'"

"Don't talk in riddles," Helen exclaimed; "tell me!"

Her gaze fixed on Bob's and he held it unswervingly while he hesitated over his choice of words for what he was going to say to her. Finally he started off with a request.

"I should like," he said, "to ask you one thing. Your answer will determine whether I can tell you more about Eva."

Helen caught her breath, nodded her head and continued to stare at him, as one fascinated against her will.

Bob's throat felt dry as he started to speak. He swallowed and opened his lips again. The words came hoarsely and slowly.

"Were you ever engaged to marry Brent?"

Helen did not answer at once. Rather her lips did not, but her eyes told Bob that he had not been wrong.

She was trying to think, to find a connection between Bob's question and Eva. How could it concern his sister that she had been Leonard's betrothed?

Finding no answer, but fearful that a shocking one would be forthcoming, and seeing no way to evade it, she inclined her head in the most been wrung from her.

"The rat!" The words, as Bob uttered them, sounded like an explosion. Helen was so startled she dropped the glass of water she had reached for, spilling its contents over the breakfast cloth.

Bob turned on his heel to go, but Helen called after him as she jumped up to follow. He hesitated and she caught his arm, digging her nails deep into the rough tweed of his coat sleeve.

"You mustn't go without telling me what all this has to do with Eva," she pleaded.

"Can't you guess?" he said shortly.

"Oh, no, no, tell me!"

"Brent has been deceiving you. You and Eva both," Bob replied, cruelly abrupt, but too miserable even to want to find a way to soften the blow.

Helen cried out and swayed away from him. Bob reached forth his arms to support her but she thrust his hands off and steadied herself without help.

"It can't be true," she said weakly. "Surely Eva must have known . . ."

"Did you ever tell her?" Bob interjected.

Helen shook her head. "No," she said; "I don't think I did. But it's inconceivable that Leonard should have lied to her—to a girl like Eva."

"Just the type he would lie to," Bob declared. "The kid's all broken up. I've seen it for weeks. But I didn't know just what it was."

"I must have been blind," Helen said, as though she admitted being guilty of a great crime. "I've seen them together and . . . there was nothing. Are you sure, Bob?"

His name slipped off her lips so naturally she was not aware of having spoken it. But it made an infinite appeal to Bob, uttered as it was in acute distress.

"Yet, I'm quite sure," he said more gently than he had yet spoken to her.

Helen's voice broke a trifle over her next question.

"Was he engaged to her too?" she asked.

"I suppose so," Bob admitted. "I haven't questioned her."

"Will you go and bring her here so I can talk to her?" Helen asked.

"I'd rather she didn't come," Bob answered, struggling against his yearning to comfort this girl who had, directly and indirectly, brought trouble to him and his beloved sister.

"I think you'd better drop Eva altogether," he went relentlessly on. "You've been extremely kind to her, but—it has brought her unhappiness."

Helen cried out in protest. "Her career? Her music? She needs me!"

Bob was stubborn. "No," he said; "if she has a great talent she will reach the top somehow. She can't help fulfilling her destiny, whatever it may be."

"Oh don't talk like an idiot," Helen exclaimed. "Someone must help her—especially now."

"Well, it won't be you," Bob retorted, grimly compressing his lips. "It may take longer, but I can give her all the help she needs."

"You're selfish and . . . unfair!" Helen told him.

"If I am it needn't trouble you," Bob answered rather childishly.

"But it does trouble me," Helen fired back at him. "Ever since Eva's accident I've felt responsible for her—in a way. And I'm not going to let you interfere."

"No?" Bob too was losing his temper now. "No doubt you've got another one of your brainstorms. Perhaps you think it would be splendid of you to try to force that Brent cur to marry Eva?"

"No," Helen answered, her voice grown suddenly quiet, though her eyes remained stormy. "He isn't good enough for her."

"So you know that, do you?" Bob's accents were terrifically unkind, but Helen ignored his sarcasm.

"Yes, I know it," Helen assured him. "I learned it the day after . . . the day after you called me a rotter."

Her head was flung high now and she spoke with a degree of spirit that Bob found unexpected. For a moment their eyes were locked in silent battle.

"Why didn't you tell me?" he asked lamely.

"Tell you?" Helen found other words beyond her for some few speechless seconds. Then she laughed.

"You are forgetting Shallimar, aren't you?" she asked.

"To be . . . " Bob stopped himself. "She's a good sport, Helen. But in this she doesn't count."

"How gullible of you!"

"She would tell you the same;

Helen's chin went up a notch higher. Somehow the movement, and the way she looked just then, filled Bob with a keen desire to make her pay for her haughtiness with a kiss.

He did not stop to reason, but instinctively he knew she would be furious if he took one, and he wanted her furious, raging, even. She'd have to melt into tears at the end of it, and where better could she weep than in his embrace?

He took a quick step forward, leaned down and pressed his lips hard against her. An encircling arm prevented her from pulling away.

She said a number of things while he held her. Bob mentally closed his ears. But he didn't breathe freely until he felt that her struggle to release herself was lessening and saw that she was, actually, on the verge of tears.

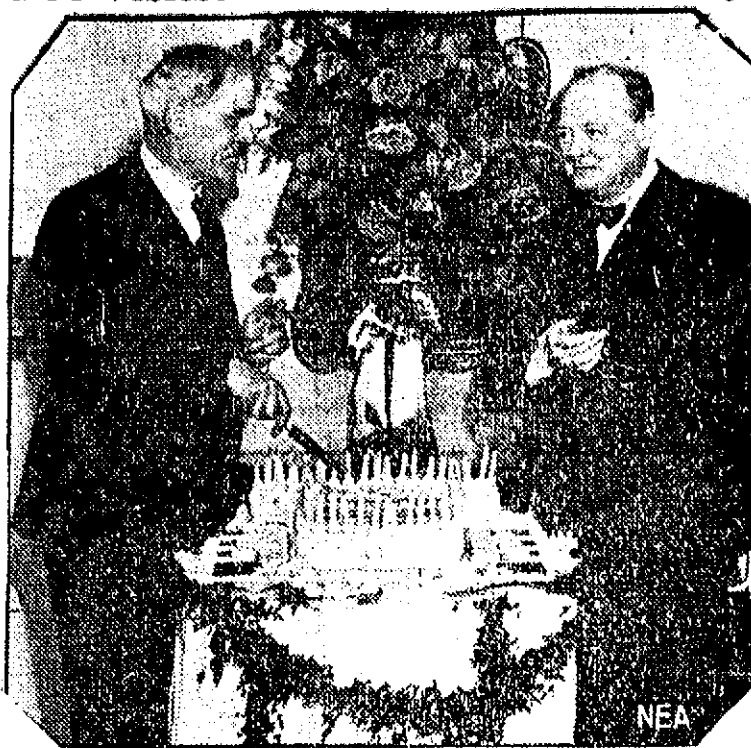

"Don't fight me dear," he pleaded. "You're mine, Helen. Don't you know that?"

Helen dropped her head to his shoulder and he held her tight for the precious moments of her surrender.

They did not, of their free wills, break it up. Mrs. Wethering came in to say that Helen was wanted on the telephone. The call was from Mrs. Ennis. "She said it is something very important," the housekeeper announced.

Andy Cohen Is Sold To Newark Ball Club

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The outright sale of Andy Cohen, second baseman, to the Newark International League club was announced today by the New York Giants.

Cohen was purchased by the Giants for a reported price of $25,000 from the Waco club of the Texas League in 1926. After a brief trial he was sent to the Buffalo Internationals in 1927, performing so well that he was recalled and played virtually a full season at second base for the Giants in 1928, batting .274. This year he played in 98 games and batted .204, alternating with several others.

Hailed as the Jewish star that Manager John McGraw had been seeking for a long time, Cohen made a sensational debut in the opening game of the season in 1928 at the Polo grounds.

In order to effect his release to Newark, waivers were obtained from all the clubs on Cohen. Cohen was born in Baltimore, attended the University of Alabama and made his professional start with Waco in 1925. His home is in El Paso. He is 25 years old.

Ace Renews Drive for Mickey's Title; Bout Set for Los Angeles, October 29

The wildest of the ring—Ace Hudkins of Nebraska—is back on the trail of Mickey Walker, the mid-dleweight champion. They will fight it out for the crown on the coast, the scene of their first battle 18 months ago.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—(AP.) The long road as a title contender from the lightweight division to the middleweight class, which Ace Hudkins has left strewn with the blasted hopes of would-be champions, has carried the Wildest from the Nebraska plains to his second fight for Mickey Walker's crown.

It was a year ago last summer that Hudkins stood toe-to-toe with the slugging Jersey brawler, trading his best efforts for what Walker could deliver in defense of his honors, and lost a decision. At Wrigley field on the night of October 29 he hopes to attain his objective. Since the night in New York when he knocked out Ruby Goldstein, lightweight, and virtually thrust the pride of the East Side into oblivion, Hudkins has been camping on the trail of champions. Until the Walker bout he was forced to be content with wounding off advances of other contenders.

Following the defeat at Chicago, the Nebraskan has been a busy scrapper. His technical knockout victory over the stout-hearted Kentuckian, Joe Anderson, resulted in the immediate signing of papers for a return match with Walker.

Most significant of his other bouts was the decided defeat handed Armand Emmanuel in a venture into the light heavyweight division, after the fighting brawler from San Francisco had dropped a close decision to Tommy Loughran, then the champion.

Hudkins boasts that in his career, no fighter has emerged from a return bout with victory over him. He points to Sammy Baker and Joe Anderson as examples of scrappers who paid dearly for previous fights which earned for them the nod over the Wildest.

Walker will be no exception, says the Ace.

Good Card On for the Rink Tonight

Stacy-Pierce Bout Should Be A Hummer of A Scrap.

According to Sammy Noble, manager of Jack Stacy and aide to Tex Leavelle in boxing promotion here, advance sale of reserve seats indicates that fans are interested in the quality of the attractions listed and will be present to take in the fun.

Speaking for himself and talking out loud, Noble said his man Stacy was ready to give Mr. Pierce the surprise of his young life. Asked if he didn't think Stacy was conceding plenty in weight and inches, he airily waved it aside as of no importance, saying something about "the bigger they are the harder they fall."

All contestants signed for tonight are on hand, Noble says. The festivities open with two four-round preliminaries, then "Preacher" and Perry go on for six, to be followed by Whitley and Taylor in their eight-round argument. Then the top-liners come on for ten. A total of 34 rounds of boxing, with top prize for seats fixed at $1.50.

ONE-DAY CONVENTION TO BE HELD AT GURDON

day, October 21.

There will be three sessions: 10:00 a. m., 1:30 p. m., and 6:30 p. m. The program will be characterized by periods of devotion, an address by a missionary, and discussions of a general nature, regarding the work of the church. A banquet for members of official boards and their families will be held at 6:30.

Herbert Smith, missionary to Africa since 1910, comes from the mission stations at Lumbale, which is the largest congregation of the Disciples of Christ. There are more than 11,000 members in that church.

Miss Ora Shepherd, Miss Ethel Johnson, Mrs. J. H. Fuller, and many other outstanding speakers and leaders will be there. A delegation from the local church plans to attend.

"Everybody Hits!"—So He Did

The roar of the Athletics' big sticks pounding on household had begun to echo through the land when this picture was taken in that history-making seventh inning of the fourth World Series game at Shibe Park, Philadelphia. Second Baseman Bishop is shown above as he contributed his bit to Philadelphia's mad clout carnival—a sharp single through the pitcher's box that scored Dykes for the fourth of the ten Philadelphia runs in that inning which downed the Chicago Cubs, 10 to 8.

Night Football?

Football by floodlight has been spreading rapidly this fall and drawing greater crowds than attended the afternoon games where the vogue has been adopted. But—

There is something about the game as played by candlepower that is unreal and fantastic. Fans have been watching Georgia Tech practice on its brilliantly lighted field and have stirred up quite an argument about it in the Atlanta papers.

Coach Bill Alexander has endorsed the night game, but with the opening remark that "it is generally admitted that football under ideal conditions should be played at 2 or 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon of a clear, crisp fall day."

A fan writes to say that "night football has it all over day football in color and sparkle and atmosphere. As a sight for the eye towers over the day game like booth."

Blake Comments

Spots Editor Morgan Blake comments:

"Of course anybody differing with that profound statement (above) is a 'horse and buggy' philosopher. Nevertheless this department is old-fashioned enough to be willing to accept the charge and plainly state that night football, while an interesting novelty, is a long, long way from being as satisfactory as day football.

"With the use of the white football it is very easy to follow the ball. The most visible thing on Grant Field Monday night was the white football. Now if they would put several coats of whitewash on all the players, the visibility would be even better.

"The visibility, so far as the players themselves are concerned, is evidently satisfactory. With the white football they can catch passes and punts as well as in the daytime. At least we can give this angle the benefit of the doubt. Perhaps some of the players will tell you the visibility is not so good from their standpoint. You might ask them about it.

Can't See Features

"But if there was one person in that audience of 5000 people who could distinguish the features of the players as well under the artificial light as he has been able to do in the day time, then that person should thank his Maker for his wonderful eyesight. "That was the main complaint lodged against night football by the fans who sat in the immediate vicinity of the writer. One could tell when Stumpy Thomason had the ball of course. One could do that in the moonlight or candle light. But you couldn't spot the others. No features were distinguishable. And when the players were on the other side of the field it was just a mass of bodies with no faces at all."

Bootleg Plot?

One of the fans wrote to say that "this night football scheme looks like a bootleggers' plot to double their business, for, whereas a pint per customer should suffice lower temperature after night fall for an afternoon's performance, the Candler building over a voting would doubtless require at least a quart."

No More "Iron Maidens"! AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Never again need scientific research grope in darkened cellars behind doors bolted against torture. AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE has swept before it the ignorant barrier which stupidly impeded men of genius and science marches proudly on.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

TUNE IN—The Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra, every Saturday night, over a coast-to-coast network of the R. B. C.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

Kidnaped Child and Father

Ishbel Goes Collegiate

Like any peppy young American co-ed, Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of Britain's Premier, had a date to a football game during her visit in New York. Here you see her with her escort, Horace E. Anderson, Columbia University student, as they roared for his team. Later they danced together at a ball given in her honor, and Anderson pronounced her "like lots of college girls—good company, interested in everything and intelligent."

Sheppard's Plan Expected To Bring Greatest Dry Law Battle

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Unless the dry organizations develop cold feet, which they seldom do, Senator Sheppard's bill to brand the buyers of liquor as equally guilty with the sellers probably will turn out to be the issue in the most important prohibition fight for several years.

If the bill is made a law there will be virtually nothing left for the drys to ask for in the way of legislation excepting measures so extreme that no one has previously considered them advisable to press. The drys experimented with heavier penalties when they put over the Jones law, but hardly anyone argues that the "five and ten" act has had any particular effect on the enforcement situation.

It may not pass. There is some chance that the Sheppard bill will be allowed to die a quiet death. It does not appear to represent the considered program of the dry organizations, though it has the approval of Bishop Cannon, who is the strongest individual figure among them.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

CREOMULSION FOR THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

izing bootleggers, unwilling to join a class at last recognized as criminal by the statutes.

Others fear that it would have no such effect and that, on the contrary, it would tend to stiffen resistance to the prohibition laws by automatically creating the largest class of law-breakers with which any government ever had to deal.

Legal experts of the prohibition bureau say that while such a law might result in more convictions, its principal effect upon the community would be as a method of moral suasion. Some of them are convinced that it would result in a large reduction of the amount of liquor consumed and that it would tend importantly to make abstinence "respectable."

Both the drys and the prohibition enforcers are emphatic in the contention that the purchaser is morally as guilty as the vendor. "The difference," says Pussyfoot Johnson, "is the difference between the inmate and the frequenter of a disorderly house."

But in the past the drys haven't felt that a law covering purchasers was worth fighting for. Wayne B. Wheeler and his companions decided to let it ride when they framed the Volstead act and passed it. The act provides that no one shall buy liquor without obtaining a permit, and of course the permits are unobtainable. The act doesn't make the provision stick by applying any penalty.

Concentrate on Bootleggers

It does provide against transportation and possession with penalties, and the drys have always figured that bootleggers could be adequately prosecuted for illegal possession or transportation. They would rather convict one bootlegger than a dozen customers, although they believe example should be made of some of the wealthy and more prominent scofflaws.

They are now giving serious consideration to the Sheppard bill and promising among other things that if passed it will provide an immunity both for government witnesses, including prohibitionists.

But none of them seem wildly excited about it. They are pinning their faith much more on changes in enforcement personnel and on their belief that President Hoover will force more honest and efficient administration of the law.

Cult Probe Bares Weird Story

NEA Los Angeles Bureau

A series of weird and fantastic rites and paraphernalia was disclosed by Los Angeles authorities dug deeper into the death of Willa Brown, 16-year-old cult priestess, whose body was found buried beneath a house after it had been kept preserved by ice and spices for four years. The main building at the colony of the cult—"The Church of the Divine Science of Joshua, the Branch of the Headstone of the Corner," as members call it—is shown here. Mrs. Flora Dingman is shown with her 2-year-old child, Baby Jehovah, who, according to published reports, was expected by the cult to become the second Messiah. A massive 500-pound glided "Christ Chair" with the head of a dog thereon, which awaited the coming of the second Messiah, also was found at the colony and is shown here.

Lita Grey Chaplin To Wed Stage Star

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Phil Baker, accordion player of the revues, and Lita Grey Chaplin, who sings in vaudeville, will await the expiration of their theatrical contracts before being married. The former wife of Charles Chaplin, who announced the engagement, and Baker are appearing at separate theatres here.

Mrs. Chaplin said she would have her two children, Charles, Jr., and Sidney Earle, with her when she establishes a new home as the wife of the accordionist-comedian. Custody of the children was given her under the terms of her divorce from Charles Chaplin.

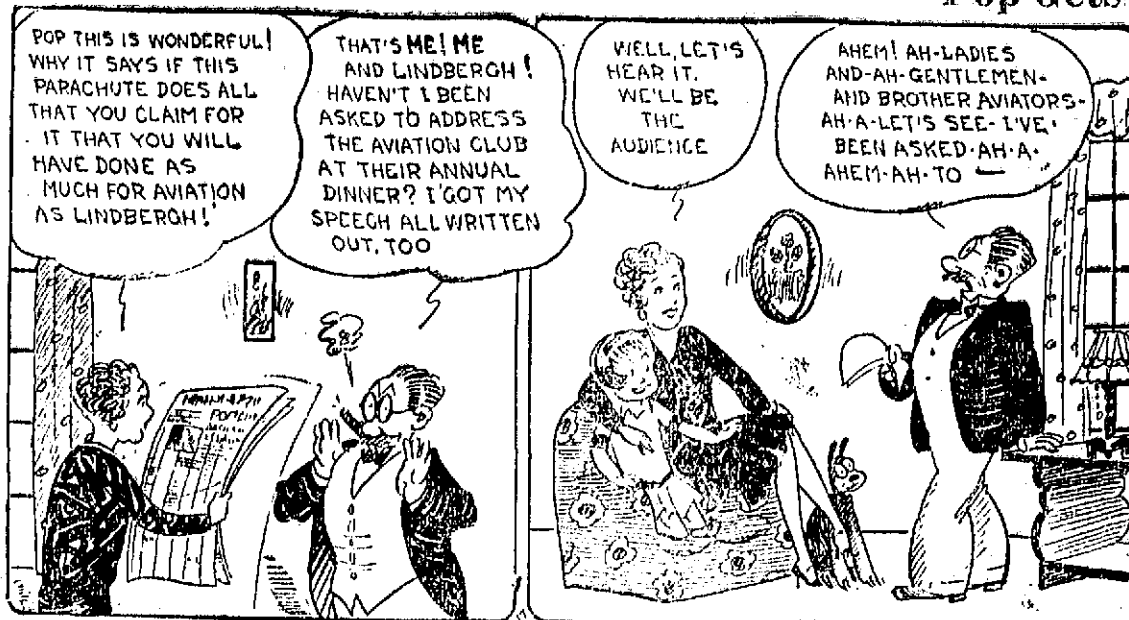

Col. Bradley To Repeat One-Day Orphan Benefit

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Colonel E. R. Brady, who last year stirred up a storm of debate by holding an orphan's benefit race meeting at his Idle Hour farm near Lexington, is going to repeat the performance November 18. The 1928 proceeds totaled $25,000.

And holding to the precedent he established last year the Colonel says he intends to donate the entire profits of the meet to orphans, profits which will be swelled by free riding jockeys and the turning back of purses into the general fund.

It is understood the "Orphan's Stake," won last year by Clyde Van Dusen, will be the feature again.

BURLINGAME, Cal., Oct. 11.—"Sport" police dog owned by Miss Muriel Baradat, was bumped just once, and then he became a "traffic" police dog.

"Sport" was roughly rolled by an automobile. Then he discovered that he could imitate the sound that set an automatic traffic signal.

So now he stalks to the intersection gives his peculiar bark, and wanders leisurely across the street while motorists grind their brakes.

Hair Bobbing Decried By English Clergyman

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Women who bob their hair are committing "sexual suicide," believes the Rev. C. P. Aspinwall, vicar of St. Bartholomew's church. "They are suffering from a mental disease akin to lunacy," he wrote in the current issue of the parish magazine. "It is the greatest sin committed by women since Eve took the apple in Eden.

"Can anyone imagine a woman less like what God intended her to appear than with a short cropped head, horn-rimmed spectacles, a man's moist coat, arms burned a nasty copper color like a red indian, socks like a comic child in a pantomime or stockings like a draught-board or a bookie's waistcoat.

RIVERSIDES

Why you can save $2 to $15 on every tire you buy at WARD'S

MILLIONS OF MOTORISTS, all over the world, already ride on RIVERSIDE Tires—and still more millions soon will.

You will agree that . . . with the Super-Service RIVERSIDE guaranteed for a minimum of 30,000 miles—the First-Quality RIVERSIDE guaranteed for a minimum of 16,000 miles—and the WARDWEAR for 10,000 . . . these tires simply must be tires of quality!

And then—on comparing RIVERSIDE prices with many other high-grade makes that are not officially guaranteed for any specific mileage—you are astonished to find that at Ward's your saving per tire ranges from $2 to $15!

It's surprising. You are frankly puzzled. You discovered, long ago, that there's no such thing as "getting something for nothing." Therefore, when you find, in tires, high quality, provable quality and guaranteed quality . . . coupled with prices so low they seem to contradict all that . . . you "wonder," don't you?

You needn't! For the simple explanation lies in Ward's plan of selling to the user direct.

Instead of cutting quality in any shape or manner, we merely cut out most of the in-between profits of ordinary distribution! Thus you are protected at both ends of your transaction: on Quality, by the guarantees . . . on Economy, by the unusual savings of Ward's low prices.

Do you know of—or need—any better reasons for putting Montgomery Ward & Co. tires on your car? . . . Or any better arguments than these facts proving why you save $2 to $15 on every tire you buy?

Don't buy any other tire unless more miles are guaranteed!

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY SUGGESTIONS

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT HEADQUARTERS

Now is the time to paint for real economy. All wood is thoroughly dried and seasoned by summer's blistering sun. The balmy fall weather is ideal for painting. And most important of all—you obtain full protection during the winter months when it is needed most. Neglect nothing. Your house, the garage, fences, shutters—every exposed surface should receive an armor-like coating of SWP.

SWP is the world's best paint bargain

If your house were mine, the only paint used would be SWP. Long experience with all kinds has convinced us that it is the world's best house paint.

And it costs less on your home—remember that. Of course you can buy paints at a lower cost per gallon. But you are not interested in gallon price. The one thing of importance to you is, "how much will it cost to paint my house?"

SWP costs less per job because few gallons are needed. Its wonderful body thoroughly covers more square feet of surface per gallon.

And when the job is completed you have the best protection and clean, true colors that retain their beauty to the very last.

The best way to prove the economy of SWP is to get our estimate. Come in and see how convincing our figures are. You'll enjoy looking over our big, new book showing the latest color suggestions, too. Do it before ruinous winter doubt the cost of repainting.

Specify SWP and engage a good painter

Worthless Two Years Ago, Now Rich Soil

Two years ago Elk Grove Ranch, near Bakersfield, Calif., was an unproductive strip of river over-flow devoted to pasture. Now it is a 1600-acre tract, valued at more than $500,000. It was bought by Lloyd E. Nance of Bakersfield, and C. F. Whittier and Jerry Kent of Los Angeles. They leveled the land, sank ten wells, completely irrigated it and scientifically planted crops. The farm is now working on a diversification system, and this year raised ten different crops. The photo shows a giant grain harvester at work in a wheat field of the ranch.

Florida Grapefruit Banned From Arkansas

Attention is called to the fact that both Federal and Arkansas quarantines prohibit the shipment into Arkansas from Florida of grapefruit, oranges, and all other fruits except watermelons, pineapples, and strawberries. The following vegetables are also barred from Arkansas: peppers of all kinds, tomatoes, lima and broad beans, and eggplants. The Federal quarantine also bars these products from Oklahoma and all southern and several western states. These products can neither be shipped direct from Florida to Arkansas nor can such Florida-grown products be reshipped into Arkansas from another state. For example, altho Florida grapefruit which has met certain conditions can be shipped into Missouri and other states to the north, it cannot be reshipped by Missouri jobbers to Arkansas merchants.

Florida grapefruit and other contraband products found in the hands of Arkansas merchants are subject to confiscation by both Federal and State agents, and any person transporting such products into the state is subject to prosecution in both Federal and state courts.

There is no restriction on the entry of Texas grapefruit into Arkansas, nor on grapefruit from any other state except Florida.

It is reported that Federal agents have made several arrests in Kansas City, where wholesale fruit concerns were found to have filled several shipments of Florida grapefruit to Oklahoma merchants.

All Plant Board inspectors have been instructed to watch for contraband Florida products in the markets, especially grapefruit, and to confiscate any found stored or offered for sale.

Richthofen's Conqueror Missing

Lieutenant Roy Brown (No. 1) Canadian war ace who shot down the famous German pilot Baron von Richthofen, who bagged 50 allied planes, is reported missing with two companions in the barren wastes of northwest Canada where they were searching for Colonel C. D. H. McAlpine and his party of lost explorers. These exclusive pictures of the great northwest airplane hunt that has haunted together Canada's most famous flyers, obtained by this newspaper by NEA Service in co-operation with the Hudson Bay News Bureau of The Pas, Manitoba, which has cameramen with the party, show: No. 2, Captain Stan McMillan's airplane taking off over the ice; No. 3, Captain McMillan (in center) in camp just before departing; No. 4, Captain H. H. Kenyon, crack flyer of Western Canada Airways, just before he hopped into his plane to join the big hunt.

WANT MAKES GENIUSES,
NOTED AUTHOR ADVISES

"Give your son a small allowance and let him shift for himself."

That is the advice W. Somerset Maugham, world famous playwright, gave to a Boston mother who wanted to know how her son could win literary success. Maugham explained his recommendation.

"The son who wants to write," he points out, "often finding himself penniless, will be obliged to do many odd things to get food. These adventurous excursions, added to his native talent, should equip him to write realistically and with feeling."

Paramount has just completed filming Maugham's latest play "Charming Sinners" as an all-talking picture with Ruth Chatterton, Olive Brook, William Powell and Mary Nolan in the cast. It will show at the Saenger theatre Friday.
